

✓ Farmer:

You have worked hard all your life and have always been poor.

The company have offered you a lot of money to sell your land. You could then retire to Istanbul and live in luxury

✓ Teacher:

You are a teacher at the local school

You see that the school is going to be knocked down and converted into a mini-golf area and a disco.

What will happen to the children's' education?

✓ Muhtar:

You believe the planned development will bring you money and power but you can't let the villagers know how you really feel.

- You are chairing the meeting.
- You need to organise everything.
- Make sure that everyone gets a chance to speak (but try to discourage those who seem against the plan)
- At the end of the meeting organise a show of hands for the voting

✓ Engineer:

You work as a middle manager for the construction co. that helped design the Holiday village

You're at the meeting to give technical advice about the plan.

You don't want to give in to too many changes but you definitely want the plan to go ahead so you need to be very diplomatic. This is a very important contract for your co and you will get promoted to top management if it goes ahead.

Widow/Widower:

You have a family and are worried about their prospects. Your son has been unemployed for more than a year. Your daughter is leaving school this year. You like the idea of finding a part-time job for yourself too, to earn a little extra money, as your pension is very small. It will also make Binkilic a more interesting place to live in

Local Shop Owner:

You are strongly against the scheme. What will happen to your shop if there is competition from the supermarket? You can't compete.

The local farmers usually charge a high price to buy their fruit and vegetables.

Their prices will certainly go up. How will the company protect you?

You don't want to move
